HER DEATH DUE TO CARBOLIC ACID

Mrs. Albert Boileau Committed Suicide While Melancholy—Her Husband Found Body When He Returned Home to Dinner—Leaves Two Children.

Mrs. Albert Boileau, forty years old, wife of a merchant of Bustleton, committed suicide last Monday at her home, 1716 Palmer street, by drinking a quantity of carbolic acid.

Mrs. Boileau left a note to her husband, in which she said that she was suffering from melancholy and that she was unable to live any longer.

Mrs. Boileau's dead body was discovered by her husband when he returned home at noon from his store at Main street and Welsh road.

On going upstairs he found her lying on the bed. The odor of carbolic acid was strong in the room, but not until he had read the note did he realize what had happened.

An empty bottle of carbolic acid was found by the side of the bed, and the table by the side of the bed showed traces of the acid.

Mrs. Boileau telephoned to Dr. J. H. Beyer, of 8418 Bustleton avenue, who after examining the woman said she had been dead for several hours.

Mrs. Boileau is said to have been ill for more than a year, having undergone an operation which was unsuccessful. Since that time she has had frequent fits of melancholia.

Mrs. Boileau formerly resided at Hartsville, where Mr. Boileau was postmaster and proprietor of the general store. Since moving to Bustleton, he has assisted his father, T. W. Boileau, in his store.

The funeral was held on Thursday, at 10 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Boileau, and was attended by a large number of friends.

When Mr. and Mrs. George S. Coyne who make their home in the winter in Philadelphia, visited their handsome country seat on the Second Street pike, below Bethayres on Sunday last, they were astonished to see the house had been entered and that everything was in disorder.

The thief had made his entrance by battering the outside kitchen door and breaking the glass to reach the interior of the house. Mr. Coyne at once notified the Abington police and the Philadelphia police.

On Tuesday a man, giving the name of George Taylor, and no address, was arrested by Special Officer Lynch, of the Philadelphia police, while attempting to pass some articles, which answered the description of those taken from the Coyne residence. MAD DOG SCARE
ABOUT NEWTOWN

Two Men Bitten in Newtown—Several Dogs and a Cow also Victims—Dog Finally Killed—Quarantine Declared.

Newtown residents and people of the community for five miles around, had an exciting "mad" dog scare on Sunday and Monday, in which time two men, Michael Mann and Michael Iley, of Newtown, and a number of dogs were bitten. The mad dog, a mongrel, owner unknown, was shot on Monday by Jacob Craven, at Bridgeport.

Both injured men had their wounds treated by Dr. Lively, who was in the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, and afterward sent to Marietta, Pa., for the Pasteur treatment.

The dog also bit a dog and a cow on the farm of Dr. Davis on the Swamp road.

Scores of dogs are believed to have been bitten and a few have already been killed as a precaution. Immediately after the dog was shot, it was taken to the University of Pennsylvania veterinary department to have an examination made.

Newtown council took precautionary measures by holding a special meeting Monday evening, when an ordinance was passed ordering all dogs muzzled for a period of thirty days. It is believed, also, that the Act of Assembly empowering the authorities to have dogs muzzled for ninety days in such emergencies will be evoked.

When it was found that the dog was acting as though afflicted with rabies on Sunday, a crowd chased it for a mile and a half north of the town, but the animal returned took a southerly direction and was next seen at Richboro where several dogs were bitten. From there it evidently went through Northampton and its career ended at Bridgeport.

PLUNGER WALTON DIED SUDDENLY

Born in Hatboro He Made and Lost Fortunes—Was in Hotel Business in New York and Philadelphia—Also Owned Racing Horses.

Information is received of the sudden death in New York of Colonel Francis Theodore Walton, widely known a few decades ago as "Plunger" Walton. The death of Colonel Walton, which was due to angina pectoris, occurred at his residence, 622 N. 114th street, New York City, on the 15th inst.

The family burial plot is in Laurel Hill cemetery, Philadelphia.

Colonel Walton, who got his title by being on the staff of Governor Curtin, was born in Hatboro, seventy-three years ago and going to Philadelphia in early life at once became prominent in the political and financial life of the city.

For a number of years following the Civil War he was a conspicuous leader in Republican politics and held the office of Recorder of Deeds from 1870 to 1874. While serving in that capacity Colonel Walton entirely rearranged the system of recording deeds which is in vogue today.

As a financier and capitalist Colonel Walton took front rank in the 70s and 80s. During that period and at the time of the Pittsburgh riots he was said to have been the largest individual holder of Pennsylvania Railroad stock except William Thaw. Because of the riots Pennsylvania Railroad stock dropped far below par and Colonel Walton's fortune like many others, practically vanished.

Colonel Walton was also one of the founders of the Fidelity Trust Company, and for years was interested in other financial institutions of Philadelphia. He took a conspicuous part in the Centennial, having been chairman of numerous committees.

Despite his great prominence in finance and local distinction in politics, it was as a "plunger" on race horses and proprietor of famous hotels that Colonel Walton was most widely known. He was, in fact, the first of the noted plungers of the turf.

In the early '50s he became fascinated with the racing game, and his luck was marvelous both in this country and in Europe. In one day in 1856 he won $75,000 and returned to New York from that trip with $200,000 of English and French money.

Returning to England in 1881, Colonel Walton plunged on Irish and Foxhills, American horses, and took $400,000 from the British bookmakers. It was then that he got the sobriquet "Plunger" Walton.

His next visit to Europe was in 1883, when he took over the celebrated racing mare, Giraffe. He bet enough money on the mare, it has been said, to win $1,000,000 but luck went against him and he returned to this country practically without funds.

Besides his setback by the Pittsburgh riots Colonel Walton made and lost half a million fortunes in hotels and at the race track. In 1877 he built and conducted the St. James Hotel in New York, catered and headed quarters of racing men. Later he conducted the Grand Hotel, the Victoria in New York and the Stockton at Cape May. In each of these the cuisine was noted at the time of Colonel Walton's proprietorship. An intimate friend of Queen Victoria, New York, Colonel Walton advised him to build a big hotel in Philadelphia. Mr. Golet accepted the advice and the Hotel Walton was the result, the name being selected as a compliment.

Although a noted bon vivant, Colonel Walton, about ten years ago, came in the public eye in still another way by fasting for twenty-one days to cure an attack of rheumatism. He broke his fast by eating two pounds of beef steak in his own hotel, the Victoria.

Colonel Walton retired from business five or six years ago. He is survived by a wife and the following children: Mrs. D. S. B. Chew, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Morris Brown, of Yorkers, N. Y.; Mrs. Charles Bidd, of Chicago; Frank Walton, of New York; and Harold Walton, of Denver.

Colonel Walton's home when he resided in Philadelphia was at 38th and Walnut streets, adjoining the former residence of A. J. Drexel.

His last visit to Hatboro was at the time of the funeral of Mrs. Lydia Barnsley to whom he was related.

FARMER COMMITS SUICIDE
Robert Cameron Shoots Himself, Following Spell of Melancholy.

Robert Cameron, a farmer of West Norriton township, Montgomery county, and a school director, committed suicide on Friday morning by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. His act was committed in bed while his wife and three children were at breakfast.

Cameron had been under the doctor's care for nervous prostration and had been melancholy for a long time. He was an ardent prohibitionist and frequently was a candidate on that party's ticket. He was especially active in farmers' institutes and school directors' conventions.

Union carpenters, headed by city men, working in the park, struck this week for an increase of wages from 45 to 50 cents per hour. Their demands were granted.

There is strong talk of another strike among trolley employees. An all-day meeting of the members of the street carmen's union attached to the Willow Grove barn was held last Monday, continuing the work of strengthening the organization. Addresses were made by P. J. Shea, the Scranton organizer, member of the International Executive Board; Hugh Barron, secretary of the local union, and G. C. Bachman. One meeting lasted from 9 o'clock in the morning until 12 noon and the other began at 1 p. m. and ended at 2.30 p. m. The men are demanding an increase of wages to 25 cents per hour. The company says it cannot afford to pay such a figure.

An application for a sub-station post office has been made by Mr. Davis, York road and Green lane, to the postmaster of Philadelphia, to be located in his drug store. As there is no office where a letter can be registered or a money order procured in this vicinity nearer than Oak Lane or Logan, it is thought that he will have but little trouble in securing the office.

Changes in the grade of all streets bounded by Fifth and Ninth streets, Olney and Godfrey avenues, were made by the Board of City Surveyors at a recent meeting at City Hall. The park contains a wooded tract, which is to be preserved.

TREVORSE

Thieves have been with us again this week. During the continuous rains it was noticed that three men were camping in an aqueduct under the Reading's tracks east of John Leary's place. And one of our citizens prepared to receive them during the midnight hours, by aiming a shotgun at the doors and windows, taking a woodman's axe into his sleeping room. It may be that the midnight raiders were looking for a light and turned their attention to a dwelling across the fields, occupied only by working men. This robbery added to the laborers departed for the day. A suit case containing a new outfit of working clothes, as also miscellaneous articles of wearing apparel, four razors, shoes and two watches. One of the latter bears the number 19719237. A special policeman came from Philadelphia for a description of the stolen goods.

The recent winter supper and social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sichel was a great success, as are all the socials of the Ladies' Aid Society. The attendance was large and the receipts very satisfactory indeed.

There are few of us who give much thought to the good of the community at large. Many will remember what it is usually spoken of as the "old fashioned" donations of people gathered at farmhouses and in village dwellings as often as twice weekly, and who good times were then and there enjoyed. But those timely and beneficial functions appear to have ceased to exist, save in the efforts of these ladies who are carrying on the work in the more modern way.

The article appearing in these columns some weeks ago concerning the rehabilitation of Poplar Park at Nesaminy Falls, for which upward of twenty thousand dollars was to have been expended, developed upon the ability of a public park promoter to borrow that sum upon certain conditions.

Two weeks after the appearance of the item referred to, we were informed by a real estate operator of Philadelphia, that his private affairs tended to indicate that the project might fall through. His information seems now confirmed by a recollection reported by the daily press of Monday and Tuesday, relative to what was once a famous park in New Jersey and the steamboat line plying between Philadelphia and a near by port, all of which is very likely the end of the Nesaminy Falls improvement, at least this year.

COLMAR

Parker Jenkins, of Logan, Pa., was calling on relatives at this place on Sunday.

Charles Butcher and Mrs. E. J. Bryan, of Germantown, were Sunday guests of relatives at this place.

Mrs. Elma Strien, of Philadelphia, was entertained by Misses Annie and Carrie Bender, at Montgomeryville, over Sunday.

Monroe Tyson and family have moved to Lansdale and a family from Doylestown have moved into the house vacated by Mr. Tyson.

Mr. Hiram McCrea, of Montgomeryville, who has been seriously ill at the home of his daughter in Philadelphia, is reported to be much improved.

The annual roll call service and social will be held in the Montgomery Baptist church next Monday evening.

May 1st, Rev. John Meagan, pastor of the New Britain Baptist church, will make an address. Special music is being prepared for the occasion and refreshments will be served.

McKINLEY

A birthday party was held at the home of Miss Sammie, 101 Cypress avenue, Saturday evening last.

Officer Kenny is moving from Cypress avenue to the Holmes property. Robert Malinvarter is to occupy the house vacated by him.

The string band met at the home of John Higgins on Thursday evening of the 20th, for practice and great interest was displayed in this new development.

Peter Pinkett's dancing hall in the Hammerstein building is a drawing card for the element who indulge in the graceful art of tripping the light fantastic toe, and is steadily gaining in popularity.

A bicycle party was held at the home of Elwood Gamwell on Saturday evening. The bicycles being very prettily decorated for the occasion.

The club is in full swing for the season, and this popular exercise is receiving much attention.

The fire and drum corps with bugles, were out Monday evening with transparencies, announcing the dance which was held at 170 feet, and a 3rd for their benefit. If you have not already obtained your ticket, you will miss much attention.

A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the fire company was held in the firehouse Wednesday evening, to formulate plans for a moving picture show to be held May 13th. The services of Emmet Welch, whose popularity needs no comment, are to be secured, if possible.

ORIGIN OF Pinkham's Blood Purifier

Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., succeeded in producing, from the roots and herbs of the fields, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful medicine for women's ailments the world has ever known. After she had put this on the market, women began to write her about their health, because they felt a natural delicacy about consulting any man physician regarding these ailments for which the Vegetable Compound is intended.

She soon found that her correspondents often had complications caused by impure, impoverished blood, and she recognized the necessity of having a reliable blood purifier which she could recommend with confidence as

The Best Spring Medicine

Then, as now, there were many blood purifiers and spring medicines on the market, and after looking into them, she found nothing so good as the old home medicine made from roots and herbs, which she had been accustomed to use in her own family, so she had this made up on a large scale, and furnished it to the stores. It has been very little advertised, but has attained a large sale solely on its merits, and is really a wonderful blood purifier and spring medicine.

It is a good, old-fashioned household remedy made from roots and herbs, which has been used from generation to generation for purifying the blood, removing humors and eruptions, and for that all "played out" feeling.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.TIMELY TOPICS OF PLANTS AND PESTS DISCUSSED WEEKLY
By H. A. Surface, State Zoologist of Pa.DESTROY PEACH TREE BORERS NOW.

Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist of Pennsylvania, in replying to an inquiry by a prominent fruit grower says that it is important to remove peach tree borers at this time of year. His reply to his correspondent is as follows:

Replying to your letter concerning your peach trees which have "white worms at the roots," I beg to say that these pests are known as the Peach-tree borers. They seriously infest, and even readily destroy both peach and plum trees. They are the grub or larvae of a moth which flies and looks very much like a wasp, as they dart around the trees in the daytime from the middle of June to the last of September laying their eggs. From these eggs hatch the white grubs which feed first at the outside of the bark, and then cut their way through.

They pass the winter in a partially grown state, some being small and others larger, and they commence to feed voraciously in the early spring. At this time of year you can recognize their presence by seeing the fine grains like sawdust in the masses of gum around the bases of the trees.

The gum may come out of the peach tree from other causes than the borers, and to cut into it when there is no borer present will cause more or less of an injury at a spot that is already injured. It is, therefore, best to watch for the sawdust like grains in the gum, and where these are present cut into the hole of the borer by using a strong pointed knife blade. It will be found just beneath the surface of the bark. It can be located by sticking the blade through the bark where it will go readily into the hole. Make the cut vertical or up and down, rather than crosswise. Remove all the borers by hand. Leave the ground open around the trees, and examine them in about a week, and see where any have been left. Remove these, and also their run, and again go over them in about a week. In this way you can get them all.

Then fill the soil around the trees to the level of surrounding surface. About the middle of June spray or wash the trunks of these trees thoroughly with the lime-sulfur solution, made strong as for Sap Jones scale. Apply it abundantly so that it will run down around the trunks. Be sure that it reaches the base of the trunk, and that the soil is saturated with it. Perhaps to a depth of one or two or three inches, but not enough to soak all the roots. Then mound the trees with soil to a depth of four or five inches around this coating of lime-sulfur, and you may be sure that you will not again be troubled with the Peach-tree borers.

HOW TO PREVENT INJURY BY SPRAYING SOLUTION.

An extensive York county fruit grower recently wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface, asking how to avoid, and how to treat injury to the hands by coming in contact with strong spraying solution. This is a very timely topic, and some persons will find it quite applicable to their own need. The answer of Professor Surface was as follows: "Replying to your letter concerning the injury to the hands of your men who use the lime-sulfur solution, I can say that this can be avoided if you will direct the men to get cheap gloves of any kind, and drop them right into melted tallow or paraffin. I myself use cheap leather gloves, although I have been told by those who have used them, that cloth gloves treated in this way are likewise made impervious to the liquid. The hands should be rubbed with vasoline, as should also the neck and face, or exposed parts of the body, before the men start to spray. They should also protect themselves by goggles, such as can be had for ten cents at almost any notion store. If the apparatus is in the proper working order, and proper precautions are taken, they can spray without injury to their hands. To do this I wish to be sure, first, that I have a good hose, a good washed stop cock, and a good extension rod, and next, that there is a disk of thick leather, like sole leather, about as large as my hand, around which the rod toward the top, to turn away any spray liquid that may run down any drip which permits the operator to use the rod around the nozzle, as it being pliable permits the operator to use the rod among the brush without catching and tearing. While the lime-sulfur solution is injurious to one's hands if they are constantly soaked with it give trouble if the operator will take the proper precautions. It is a strong material, and must necessarily be strong in order to do its work of killing the scale. Where one has been injured by the material burning his skin, it is best to apply some healing ointment or vasoline, and bandage the part so as to prevent further wearing upon the place where the skin has been made raw by the liquid. You can spray any trees until the blossoms are opening, but you can not spray after the blossoms have expanded, without danger of destroying your fruit crop."

HOW LATE CAN WE SPRAY WITH LIME-SULFUR SOLUTION FOR SCALE.

A successful commercial sprayer in Blair county, Pa., who has for some years been advising fruit growers, writes State Zoologist H. A. Surface, and making a business of spraying trees, just as owners of threshing machines make a business of threshing grain. He has just written to Professor Surface asking "how near may the buds be out until there is danger of scalding by the liquid." The reply, which is important and practical, is based upon experience, and may prove useful to many readers: "I know from observation and experience that you can safely use it until the pink of the blossoms is seen, or, in other words, until the blossoms are ready to expand."

This is true not only of apple, but also of peach. Last year I sprayed my peach trees after one-fourth of the blossoms were open, and while I am not sure that these opening blossoms were uninjured, I do know that there was such a heavy crop of fruit on the trees that I had to hire help to do considerable thinning by hand, and keep the trees from overbearing. I am thus satisfied that no injury came from the application, in which I used the strong lime-sulfur solution, made to the hydrometer test of 1.05, which is the strength now generally recommended for scale. Spraying with this material, even when the blossoms are in full, is not dangerous, and I am sure that you are safe in giving this answer to your very important question. Hundreds of persons this spring will make the same inquiry, and I shall consequently publish this reply, as soon as possible, in order to let all others who are needing the same kind of help."

SPRAYING POTATO PLANTS

Some Rules for Successful Use of Bordeaux Mixture.

In general, commence spraying potatoes when the plants are six to eight inches high, and repeat the treatment at intervals of 10 to 14 days in order to keep the plants well covered with Bordeaux throughout the season. During epidemics of blight it may be necessary to spray as often as once a week. Usually six applications will be required. The Bordeaux should contain four pounds of copper sulfate to each 50 gallons in the first two sprays, and five pounds to 50 gallons in subsequent spraying. When even bugs or flea beetles are plentiful add one or two pounds of Paris green or two pounds of arsenate of lead to the quantity of Bordeaux required to spray an acre.

Thoroughness of application is to be desired at all times, but it is especially important when flea beetles are numerous and the weather favorable to blight. Using the same quantity of Bordeaux, frequent light applications are likely to be better than one heavy one. When a horse sprayer carrying but one nozzle per row is used, it is best to make the plants once a week than to make a double spraying once in two weeks. A good plan is to use one nozzle per row in the early sprays, and two nozzles per row in the later ones.

Those who wish to get along with three spraying should make the first one until there is danger of injury from bugs or flea beetles, and then spray thoroughly with Bordeaux and poison. The other two sprays should likewise be thorough and applied at such times as to keep the foliage protected as much as possible during the remainder of the season. Very satisfactory results may be obtained from three through sprays. A single spraying is better than none, and will usually be profitable, but more are better. Spraying may prove highly profitable even though the blight is only partially prevented. It is unsafe to postpone spraying until blight appears. Except, perhaps, on small areas, it does not pay to apply poison alone for bugs. When it is necessary to fight insects, use Bordeaux and poison together.

COW, IN WEEK, GIVES 38 POUNDS BUTTER.

E. H. Dollar, near Utica, N. Y., is the possessor of a cow, Pontiac Pet, of the Holstein Friesian breed, which holds the world's record for butter production. Mr. Dollar has completed a seven days' test with his cow. In that time she won the blue ribbon, producing 590.7 pounds of milk and 37.87 pounds of butter. The milk was related by two Cornell University experts for two days, and gave 5.35 pounds of butter in one day.

WALKED TRACK KILLED BY TRAIN.

In his endeavor to shorten his usual route by crossing the railroad tracks a short distance above Lindley station, on the Reading Railway, Paul Ruge, an eighteen-year-old newspaper carrier, was instantly killed by a south-bound passenger train early Saturday. The boy was caught by the cowcatcher and rolled under the wheels of the train. When the ambulance from the Jewish Hospital arrived the surgeon pronounced him dead. Ruge lived at 5138 N. 5th street, and was employed by Herman Conrad, a news-dealer, at 13th street and Clarkson avenue. In accordance with his usual custom, the boy started out at 5 o'clock Saturday morning to deliver papers. While walking along tracks he either failed to hear the warning toll of the locomotive or was unable to get out of the path of the oncoming train.

BADLY HURT BY FALLING WALL

Watson Mathews, Sr., of Buckingham, Has Legs Broken.

Watson Mathews, Sr., of Buckingham Valley, was very seriously injured, about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, by the unexpected collapse of an old barn on his farm. With several men he was tearing the structure down, and his son, George, and a nephew, who had just loosened one of the sides had called a warning which he had not heard. Part of the building caught him underneath and he was almost completely buried.

As quickly as possible he was dug out of the debris and Dr. Joseph E. Swartzlander and Edwin M. Ellis were called. They found him in a serious, but not necessarily fatal, condition. Both legs had been fractured, the left in two places below the knee. There was a severe scalp wound, a cut in the thigh and he may be hurt internally.

Mr. Mathews is 59 years of age.

BACK FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Montgomery Counts Enjoy a Trip to the Tropics.

Francis E. Bond, of Gwynedd, this county, until recently a member of the banking firm of Edw. B. Smith & Co., has returned from a trip of exploration in the wilds of Venezuela. He brought with him a collection of birds which have been presented to the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia.

Mr. Bond made the trip in company with Stewardson Brown, botanist of the Academy of Natural Sciences, and Thomas F. Gillin, an amateur naturalist, of Ambler.

Mr. Bond speaks in glowing terms of the undeveloped riches of Venezuela, which abounds in gold and silver, he says. The party left New York December 26 for Trinidad. The explorers spent ten days in Trinidad, outfitting, and then made the short voyage to Cristobal Colon, Venezuela, in a sloop, and then they struck into the wilds.

They went far into the Orinoco delta, and followed the Manamo river for many miles. For weeks they were virtually without the pale of civilization and human habitation, and spent their time shooting and hunting for birds rare in this part of the world.
